

Emily C. Trostle is the Immigrant Child Advocate Coordinator of the Louisiana Esperanza Project at Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Baton Rouge. She graduated from Loyola University New Orleans College of Law in 2014 and holds a Masters in Nonprofit Organizations from the University of Georgia and a Bachelor of Arts in Women’s Studies and Spanish from Smith College. She is a member of the Louisiana Bar Association and the American Immigration Lawyers Association (“AILA”). While a student at Loyola College of Law Emily held leadership roles in several public interest student organizations such as National Lawyers Guild, Lambda Law Alliance and the Public Interest Law Group. She was a member of the Loyola Journal of Public Interest Law and served as a student practitioner in the Stuart H. Smith Law Clinic and Center for Social Justice Immigration Section. She is the recipient of a 2014 Gillis Long Poverty Law Center Public Service Award.